TRENTINI APPEARS

Story, Locale, and Music Combined at Coming Offering Here.

Novelty of story, locale and music, were the three things borne in mind when Otto Hauerbach and Rudolf Frimi set out to create "The Firefly, Education Trentini's new starring vehicle, which will be seen at the New National Theater next week.

will be seen at the New National Theater next week.

For the first time since her debut at the Manhattan Opera House, has Trentini been afforded the optortunity to display her fine vocal equipment. In her last piece, "Naughty Marietta," the prima donna, had but three numbers to sing and little chance to exert her dramatic powers. But as "The Firefty" has a real plot with a coherent story, it gives the star every opportunity to sagain come into her own. Mr. Friminas allotted eight numbers of Trentini. In all, there are twenty-two numbers in the offering. Arthur Hammerstein, who is the man behind the production has selected a cast to support Trenting with his accustomed care. The chorus numbers sixty-five, and there is an augmented orchestra of thirty-five members, under the direction of Signon bers, under the direction of Signon Gaetano Merola, who was the principal director last season at Oscar Hammerstein, Statistical comedy includes among a host of novelities, each new to this style or performance, the smallest eccentric Madge Kennedy portrays the principal female role. She injects an unusual combination of intelectuality and feeling into her work, never losing sight of an opportunity to score. William Morris plays opposite to Miss Kennedy and with the aid of their associate players, manage to send the hilarity slong at a rapid gait. Three acts of solid laughs, makes "Little Miss Brown" a wholesome visitor wherever wholesome humor is relished.

As all readers of The Washington Times are by this time well aware the attraction at the Columbia Theater next week will be Klaw & Erlanger's beautiful production of that sweetest and most delightful of New England comedies, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. In so far as The Times is concerned no stronger indorsement of this play is needed than this newspaper's rapidly maturing plans to give the orphan and crippied children of Washington a hinge matinee party at the Columbia next Wednerday afternoon. For the theater-toers it may be said that Edith Taliaders and the other members of the original company will present the play mext week, and that it is one of those few offerings that it is the duty as well as pleasure of every parent to visit with the children, as well as a charming entertainment for anyone to whom the ripple of a sunlit brook holds more charm than the turgid and often four stream of city life.

genius of Philip Bartholomae, who came into the spotlight of success recently, first with the delightful comedy, "Over Night," and next with "Lattle Miss Brown." Mr. Bartholomae will present at Chase's next week "And They Lived Hiappy Ever After," which has been stamped with New York's unqualified favor, The New York production will be given intact, the company including Conrad Cantzen, Clay Clement, Jr.; Fred R. Dix, James Mace, Frances Shannon, and Helen Du Bois.

The extra added attraction is the noted conductor and composer, Theodore Bendix, and his Symphony Players, who have achieved really wonderful success since their advent in vaudeville. They will render a program of classical and folk song, solo, and ensemble selections, which musical critics have likened to a "petit symphony." The third feature will be Nick Hufford and Deli Chain, in their absurdity, "The "Cullud Parson and the Minstrel Man," in which the ludicrous aspects of a plantation "bush meeting" are reproduced.

The operatic duettists, Frank Coombs and Ernest Aldwell, from the Manhattan Opera Company, will include their "Songs of Then and Now." The musical comedy singers, Harry Linton and Anita Laurence, will give a lyrical faniasy called "The Plano Store." Harry Devine and Belle Williams will give "The Salesman and the Drummer," and the Clairmonts will thrill with their aerial ladder episodes.

Other regular and popular feature-will be the pipe organ recitals at 1:20, 7:30, and intermission and the Animated Weekly world-wide happenings.

well-balanced cast of principals as will appear at the Academy next week in Mark Swan's "The Dingbat Family."

The company includes, among a host of novelities, each new to this style of performance, the smallest eccentric comedian, Rich McAllister, who sans and danced his way to fame through the medium of "A Night in a London Music Hall"; Rena Lewis, who plays Mrs. Dingbat, or "The Duchess," and who, with her size and weight of 225 pounds, is a foil for Mr. Dingbat; the charming prima donna, Counters Olga Von Hatzfeldt; William Pruette, Jr., whose barlione voice is said to equal that of his famous father; the petite and magnetic dancer, Hazel Rice, and the original fat boy comedian, Bobby Wagner.

entertainers of a diversified bill at Poll's next week. Mr. Barry will present a droll one-act sketch in which he is seen as the trate father of a titald bride. The playlet is called "The German Invasion," with the scene laid in a New York apartment. The leading supplementary feature will be Charles B. Lawlor & Co., in a series of character impersonations and songs. It is in the portrayal of picturesque Italian in that Mr. Laylor and his two attractive daughters are said to excel.

The success of Hugh Emmett & Co., this week has prompted Manager Thatcher to secure another act of ventriloquism for next week, but Alf Ripon works in an entirely different manner from Mr. Emmett, so there will be novelty in his specialty. Mills and with the scene laid in a New "Tellowstone Park" will be the topic of the fifth and concluding travel talk to be delivered by Dwight Elmendorf at the National Theater this afternoon. Of all places in the world, this 4s perhaps the most fascinating. In addition to the evidences of dying volcamic action to be seen in the hot springs, geysers, and fumaroles, there are mountain brooks fairly alive with trout of many species, cascades and waterfalls of unequaled settings, a beautiful lake surrounded by lofty mountains and volcanic peaks, and a river of sparkling water that dashes over a great precipice into a canyon so extravagnity colored that it seems unreal.

After spending a part of this summer in the park—his seventh visit since 1883, Mr. Elmendorf has become thoroughly acquainted with its many attractions; and by means of his camera, brushes and colors, together with a new set of motion pictures, all taken by himself, he feels qualified to present this wonderland in a manner never before attempted.

Immediately at the close of his present series, Mr. Elmendorf will leave on an extended trip to India and the Far (From Family Physician.)

handsome, according to reports that have come in advance of the show.

Occult science and the orient are always associated, and if there is a country where the learned men have really found the means of communication with those who have passed "beyond the bourne," it is probably in India, since the demonstrations made there are sufficiently mystifying, it is said, to leave the scoffer undecided as to whether there can be anything in spiritualism.

That there is something in spiritualism Dr. Eddy, who has recently returned from India, says that he will demonstrate beyond the point of contradiction at a seance at the Belasco Sunday night.

Among the features he proposes to give is that of summoning spirits among committeemen selected from the audience. He says that the spirit forms will appear and disappear at his command upon the stage, which will be well lighted. At the command of the medium, it is claimed, the spirit forms disappear, but appear again in the audience. The medium says that he is glad to have his tests investigated. Other demonstrations include slate writing, supernatural visions, figating tables, chairs, etc.

Headed by Nettle Nelson, prima donna, and Phil Ott, a capable funmaker. "The Jolly Follies" will come to the Gayety next week with a large company of assisting comedians and singers, and an elaborate production, provided by Al Rich, the owner. The scenes of the two-act musical farce are laid in Mexico, and this will offer the excuse for a brilliant array of Spanish costumes. Assisting Miss Nelson and Mr. Ott will be Alice Lazar, Maurice Wood, Virginia Ware, Tom Robinson, Max Burkhardt, and Bob Ott, with a large and lively chorus.

Anacostia Lodge Will Pay Last Tribute to Benjamin N. Taylor, Who Died Suddenly While at Work in The Navy Yard.

M. will attend the last rites, as the de-ceased was for many years a member ceased was for many years a member of the organization, and a meeting of the lodge was held last night to take action concerning his death and funeral. He was a member of the Anacostia Baptist Church also. Mr. Taylor was forty-eight years old, and is survived by several grown children. Mr. Taylor had been in ill health for a long time, and his sudden death was due to a recurrence of his illness. He had been employed in the Washington navy yard for nearly twenty years.

Miss Gertrude A. Phillips, principal of the Ketcham School, presided at a meeting yesterday afternoon in that building of the program committee of the Anacostia Parent-Teacher Association, she being chairman of that committee. The women were called together to pass upon the program for the proposed night meeting that was planned for Newember 15 in the parish hall of the Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church. Dr. William C. Woodward, the District Health Officer, who had been invited to make the address, will not be able to speak on that date, owing to another engagement, so the committee decided to postpone what was to have been the first general and social gathering to be held this season by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Health Officer Woodward will be asked to speak on the evening of December 6, according to the revised plans, and the program will consist otherwise of musical selections. The parents will be given an opportunity to meet each other, and the presence of the men of the families is hoped for.

The town hall in Congress Heights was crowded with members of the Patriotic Order of Americans and their friends last night, when Camp No. 8, P. O. A., gave its first supper of the season. The women had prepared the delicacies that were served, and hundreds of people enjoyed the menu provided.

The Men's Club of the parish, of which Mr. Gloker is president, is taking a leading part in the management of the bazaar, and the reports received last night concerning the progress that is being made were satisfactory. It will be the first event of the kind to be given by Emmanuel parish in a long time.

In addition to making the western portion of the roadway passable for traffic, the street car tracks are to be filled in, obviating another cause for complaint, it being alleged that wagons were injured and motorcycle accidents caused by the condition of the rails.

The organization of Camp Fire Girls, composed of pupils of the Ketcham School, has entered upon a program of activities related to its field. A one-mile tramp, in exploration of the ruins of old Fort Stanton, has been taken in company with the school teachers. Others are being arranged. The girls have commenced to make screens and curtains for use in the school building, and have enough of the latter as the result of their own handlwork to utilize in their hall.

Dr. George H. Heitmuller, one of the medical inspectors of the public schools, gave a lecture before the Camp Fire Girls and the teachers, speaking on food and infant mortality, and demonstrating first aid to the injured and methods of bandaging.
